I came from Williamsburg today for your meeting. Though I didn't speak, I was so pleased to see the important work you are doing. As a strong supporter for the values associated with the LWV, OneVirginia2021, Unitarian Universalists, VICPP, etc., today's session was the best one I ever attended in Richmond!!

Thanks to the Commission and its staff for keeping transparency at the front of the work.

Dear Virginia Redistricting Commission,

Thank you for voting today to start redrawing our voting districts from scratch. I trust you will continue, as a commission, to remain transparent and listen to public input.

Please choose to hire a non-partisan, experienced consultant to apply a mathematical algorithm in the drawing of Virginia's new voting districts. Math is a non-partisan subject that can insure each district is developed without bias.

Thank you for the work you are doing to allow voters to choose their representation.

I commend the Virginia Redistricting Commission's bipartisan vote to start mapmaking from a blank slate. As Board President Sharron Kitchen Miller said, "An overwhelming majority of Virginians voted for a redistricting process with unprecedented levels of transparency and public input, and today's vote embodied this mandate."

Please continue to ensure the redistricting is done in a transparent way beginning with a mathematical, non-partisan audit.

Please use a nonpartisan, mathematical audit in considering proposed redistricting maps. Allowing the commission to descend into bipartisan gridlock or back-scratching like the Federal Election Commission is not at all what most Virginians had in mind in voting for the commission. Today's vote was a step in the right direction. Thank you.

Greetings:

I applaud the Virginia Redistricting Commission's vote Monday to begin the map-drawing process from scratch, without regard for existing electoral maps.

I understand the Virginia Redistricting Commission soon will be making a decision about hiring a nonpartisan consultant to mathematically apply an algorithm based on Virginia's criteria to any maps that are considered.

In the interest of public confidence, I strongly urge the Commission to move forward with this plan.

Sincerely,

Steven Vogel

I am very concerned about the redistricting process. We live in a horribly gerrymandered district and I hope that will be corrected. But all of the partisan bickering within the commission leaves me pessimistic. I believe the agreement to start from scratch could be a good sign. Let's hope so. Virginia, of all places, should be sure that everyone's vote will matter.

I was told before the election that this whole process is a charade, leading to an ultimate inability to agree and turning it over to the state supreme court. I'm praying that that is not true and that we have some true believers in democracy on the commission.

Thank you for serving on this important group and please don't let Virginia down.

Mary

Thank you for the vote taken today to honor the wishes of the voters who voted for Question 1, praying that it would end the political gerrymandering that has characterized previous redistricting. Until today, I thought we had been deceived. The vote to start with a blank slate and work with the census data within the parameters of the law without consideration for how incumbent politicians would be effected restored credibility to the Commission.

There are politicians on the commission who treat politics as a blood sport. Please don't let them distract you. Stay on the trajectory you approved today, and make Virginians proud.

To Virginia Redistricting Commission
From: Linda H. Gray, Blacksburg, VA

I am pleased with today's decision to begin the Virginia redistricting map-drawing process from scratch.

I ask also that the Commission hire a nonpartisan consultant to mathematically apply an algorithm based on Virginia's criteria to any maps that are considered. This will promote citizen confidence that the resulting maps were done fairly.

Thank you,

I add my congratulations to the 12-4 voting tally that directed you to begin the nonpartisan process for setting up congressional voting districts in Virginia. I know the lead-up has been contentious, but your hard work demonstrates the hopes of most Virginians to have fairer elections for the next decade.

Now, I trust whatever is presented to the GA will demonstrate their strongest support. This is one Virginia citizen who sends her heartfelt gratitude for your accomplishment! Best wishes for the hard work ahead!

I am writing in support of your decision to begin the redistricting process from scratch, rather than using the terribly gerry-mandered map we currently have. I am in complete support of a fair redistricting based in data, not in political partisanship.

Thank you for your efforts on behalf of all Virginians.

To our Commissioners -

One of the reasons so many Virginians (65%) voted for the Constitutional Amendment to establish the Virginia Redistricting Commission is that they no longer wanted politicians to draw their own legislative districts and choose their own voters. If you ignore current maps, there should be less reason to be concerned about incumbent protection.

I realize some of the citizen commissioners may feel the legislators on the Commission will give you the best advice on redistricting which can be a very complicated process. Please consider, however, in this instance, whether the "fox may be guarding the hen house."

Please vote on Monday that districts will not be drawn using the current maps that are so terribly gerrymandered.

Thank you for your service on the Commission!
